

FARE STAGES & other main stops

See separate lists for Scotland, Wales, Yorkshire, Lancashire, West Midlands, London, Isle of Man and Blackpool Tramways.

This list aims to record the names of stopping places (but see below) on the traditional urban, suburban and interurban cable/steam/electric/petrol tramway systems that once existed in England. Most Horse Car lines are not included. The new tramway systems opened in recent years are not included, as details are readily available elsewhere. "Tramways" with significant railway features (e.g. Mumbles, Wantage, Wisbech & Upwell, Grimsby & Immingham, Rye & Camber, Alford & Sutton) are included in the Great Britain Various Railways list. Unlike tramway systems in many European countries, the traditional systems in Great Britain did not generally issue stop lists. Early Derby and Isle of Thanet tram timetables did include a list of stops for a time. The Aberdeen timetables included a street directory with location of nearest stop to each street. Thus, this list generally only includes names of locations shown in the public timetables, fare tables and on tickets.

£ or no symbol: fare stage (FS) name in fare tables or on tickets; t: name in public timetables (TT) & on destination screens

+: Some other (or very likely) main stops, e.g. at railway stations, town halls, hospitals, selected loops (L).

#: names from histories; Former names: []; i.d.: stop only in this direction; o.d.: stop only in other direction; tm: terminus

Text in italics after stop name is to aid location and is not part of name.

I have been greatly helped by having access to Godfrey Croughton's extensive collection of tram tickets (✓ -checked)

For system maps, the various regional Tramways booklets issued by the Light Rail Transit Association (LRTA) are recommended.

Where service numbers or letters are given below, these are generally as shown on these LRTA maps.

mainly street based electric tramway, with some private right of way. $: fare stages 1936 TT; £: fare stages from earlier tickets. It is likely extra stops were opened later in the area between Broadstairs & Dumpton Jn developed in the 1930's.
