The LIRR and its predecessors lines were mainly built at ground level. Parts of the system in west Long Island were later elevated or lowered, around 1890/1920 in Brooklyn, generally after 1940 eastwards to Babylon etc. This led to relocation, laterally as well as vertically, of many stations, often including one or two temporary stations nearby during this work. Station elevated: E(date).

See Long Island Station History web-site for more details.
